

LEADING TELEHEALTH COMPANIES TRUST URAC ACCREDITATION

What do all these telehealth leaders have in common? They rely on URAC telehealth accreditation as a testament to their quality.

URAC accreditation is a symbol of your organization's commitment to quality, safety and security in telehealth services. URAC's Telehealth Accreditation Program (TAP) offers providers much more than validation of high performance by an independent third party. Accreditation has become increasingly important to employers and their covered employees, consumers, and with health plans as they select telehealth vendors. Independent validation matters.

